Is Your Organisation Treating DPDPA as a Compliance Checklist — or a Governance Priority?

The Digital Personal Data Protection Act (DPDPA) is often viewed primarily as a legal or technology compliance requirement. In reality, effective DPDPA compliance is an enterprise-wide governance challenge that requires Legal, IT, HR, Marketing and business functions to work together within a coordinated framework.

From interpreting regulatory obligations and establishing policies to implementing operational controls, building employee awareness and ensuring accountability, every function has a role to play in responsible data governance.

This webinar will explore how organisations can move beyond siloed compliance efforts and establish a practical governance model for managing personal data responsibly throughout its lifecycle.
