EMPOWERING WOMEN – A SHARED RESPONSIBILITY: Empowering women at the workplace is a shared responsibility of the various stakeholders to business houses and commercial enterprises. Empowering women refers to creating an environment wherein the strengths that the women workforce brings to the companies are recognized and perfectly utilized. Research results provided by the United Nations have recognized the businesses that promote women empowerment and gender equality garner greater profits. Empowerment of women has become the sustained and cherished goal not only for significant business benefits but also for better working environment for all.
